

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

What does Kristi think of the latest draft?

Learning Outcome

Understand actions, events, and experiences in present, past or future and in spoken or written texts and in work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Why is it important to have someone proofread your work before submitting it?
- What was the last book you read?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about the present result of events that started in the past in work and job issues.
- I can claim, mention, request, or point out an idea, thing, or issue in the workplace.
- I can exchange complex information and advice on the full range of matters related to the occupational role.

Let's Explore!

Denise and Kristi mull over the advanced copy.

* To "mull over" means to reflect on or discuss something.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Denise : Hi Kristi. I see you've received your advanced copy of the manuscript already. Have you had a chance to look at it?
- Kristi : I have, and I'll be honest, I am not pleased with the revisions. At first glance it looked okay, but upon closer inspection, I have found that many of the suggested edits were ignored.
- Denise : I know what you mean. I have been looking over it since this morning, and I am a little bit preoccupied with the results. What other concerns did you have?
- Kristi : Well, it was mentioned that a few of the more complicated words should be removed, but not one of them was omitted. Then, some very obvious mistakes which should have been taken out were left in. These errors were pointed out by our proofreaders ages ago. Finally, it was claimed that not enough feedback was received. I took copious notes. The margins were jammed with revisions and suggestions. I polished it over and over again. How much more feedback does Marisa need?
- Denise : She must have made some corrections. Has she really ignored absolutely all of our comments?
- Kristi : Well, not exactly. She has adjusted all of the visual stuff, like the illustration and caption issues that were pointed out last month. But she hasn't lifted a finger when it comes to the grammatical revisions. These changes were requested on multiple occasions, and they were completely ignored.
- Denise : I have already contacted Marisa about this. When she gets back to me, I'll make it clear that we would like her to compose a new draft, one in which all of our edits are accurately reflected.
- Kristi : I'd appreciate that. I made all of my edits with the author's best wishes in mind. I just worry that we may have moved away from her original concept in some places.
- Denise : I understand your concern, and I really do appreciate your attention to detail. I'll have the new draft sent to you as soon as possible.
- Kristi : Thanks Denise, I look forward to seeing it.

Let's Practice!

What did the report say?

Instructions: Circle the correct option to complete the sentence. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

- These changes _____ on multiple occasions, and they were completely ignored.
a. were requested b. was request c. were request
- She has adjusted all of the visual stuff, like the illustration and caption issues _____ last month.
a. that were pointed out b. that is pointed out c. that was pointed out
- Well, _____ that a few of the more complicated words should be removed.
a. it was mentioned b. it was mention c. it is mentioned
- These errors _____ our proofreaders ages ago.
a. were pointed out in b. were pointed out by c. were pointed out of
- Finally, _____ that not enough feedback was received.
a. it were claim b. it was claimed c. it was claim

Let's Practice!

Upon closer inspection ...

Instructions: Use the options from the Word Bank to correctly complete the sentences.

Word Bank

At first glance / revisions / proofreaders / manuscript / copious / margins

- I see you've received your advanced copy of the _____ today.
- I am not pleased with the _____.
- _____, it looked okay, but upon closer inspection, I have found that many of the suggested edits were ignored.
- These errors were pointed out by our _____ ages ago.
- I took _____ notes.
- The _____ were jammed with revisions and suggestions.

Extension Activity

Proofread a text.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- In one or two paragraphs, write a recap of a famous children's story that you heard when you were young.
- Tell your children's story to a partner.
- Trade texts with your partner. Edit your partner's text for spelling and grammar.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I recap a famous children's story.

☐ ☐

I recount a story to a partner.

☐ ☐

I edit my partner's work.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- manuscript (noun): the original copy of a book, before it has been printed e.g. I see you've received your advanced copy of the manuscript already.
- advanced copy (noun): a copy received before the official release date e.g. The advanced copy will arrive three weeks before the official release.
- proofreader (noun): somebody who checks a text for mistakes
e.g. These errors were pointed out by our proofreaders ages ago.
- at first glance (expression): your first impression of something e.g. At first glance it looked okay, but upon closer inspection, I have found that many of the suggested edits were ignored.
- to omit (verb): to leave something out e.g. It was mentioned that a few of the more complicated words should be removed, but not one of them was omitted.
- to take out (verb): to remove e.g. Some very obvious mistakes which should have been taken out were left in.
- copious (adjective): many; a large amount e.g. I took copious notes.
- margin (noun): the space between a text and the edge of the page e.g. The margins were jammed with revisions and suggestions.
- to polish (verb): to clean or perfect something
e.g. I polished it over and over again.

Learning Points

The Present Perfect Tense

You use the Present Perfect tense when you want to refer to the result of an action in the past that is important in the present. This is useful when you want to comment on the present results of something in the past.

When you use the Present Perfect tense, you think of the past and present together. There is some connection to what happened in the past and the situation in the present moment.

For example:

I have made dinner.

You are referring to a past action (making dinner) that has a present result (dinner is ready to eat).

In a business context, you can use the Present Perfect Tense to make observations about someone's performance or work.

She has adjusted all of the visual stuff, like the illustration and caption issues that were pointed out last month.

Take a look at some more examples from the dialogue:

Examples:

- I see you've received your advanced copy of the manuscript already.
- Have you had a chance to look at it?
- I have found that many of the suggested edits were ignored.
- I have been looking it over since this morning, and I am a little bit preoccupied with the results.

Learning Points

Report Verbs with Impersonal Passive Constructions

Some verbs you can use, when you report what other people think or say, are claim, mention, request and point out. These are especially useful in business contexts when presenting facts and opinions about work-related subjects.

When you want to report a general comment or observation, you can use an impersonal passive construction. This means that you do not mention a person or group of people as the subject of the sentence, but rather use phrases like It was mentioned or It is believed. This style of speaking or writing is more academic sounding and used in workplace environments more than in everyday conversations.

For example:

Well, it was mentioned that a few of the more complicated words should be removed, but not one of them was omitted.

Examples:

- These errors were pointed out by our proofreaders ages ago.
- It was claimed that not enough feedback was received.
- These changes were requested on multiple occasions, and they were completely ignored.

