

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Let's plan the big launch!

Learning Outcome

Describe the reasons or results of events or actions in spoken or written texts, in work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Have you ever attended a book launch? How was it?
- If you could meet any living author, who would you choose? Why?

Can Do Statements

- I can express willingness or intention to do something in work and job issues.
- I can express duty and advice related to work and job issues.
- I can request or report about the purpose of events or actions related to job issues.

Let's Explore!

The launch date is almost upon us.

* If something is almost "upon us", then it is very close.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Thanks for coming, everyone. I would like to give you a brief overview of our plans for the book launch. You should have received a proposed itinerary by e-mail as well, so I'll just go over some of the highlights. As you may have heard, we will be going ahead with the book signing. Originally we had planned to do it at lunchtime, but Adam pointed out that we should probably wait until the afternoon when the kids would be out of school.

There was also a lot of debate as to whether we ought to serve alcohol. In the end, we decided that a few bottles of wine would be nice. It ought to give the event a more celebratory feel. The signing will also be catered. Adam contacted the company last week, so they ought to have a nice spread prepared for the big launch.

On the day of the signing, Adam and I will arrive early. This should give us plenty of time to set up. We've been publicizing the event on social media all month, so there ought to be a big lineup once the guest of honor arrives. I'll expect you all will be there pitching in at that point, as we can always use an extra hand for crowd control.

One more thing: we will be inviting a social media guru to speak at the event and introduce Marisa. We've contacted several people in the industry, and we should have our guest lecturer confirmed by the end of next week.

Thanks for your attention. Let's really try to knuckle down and make this our best launch ever.

Let's Practice!

What are you willing to do?

Instructions: Proofread the sentences. Correct the mistake. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. I wood like to give you a brief overview of our plans for the book launch.
2. As you may have heard, we are be going ahead with the book signing.
3. In the end, we decided that a few bottles of wine would being nice.
4. The signing wills also be catered.
5. I'll expect you all while be there pitching in at that point, as we can always use an extra hand.
6. One more thing: we will be invite a social media guru to speak at the event and introduce Marisa.

Let's Practice!

Talking shop is fun, sometimes!

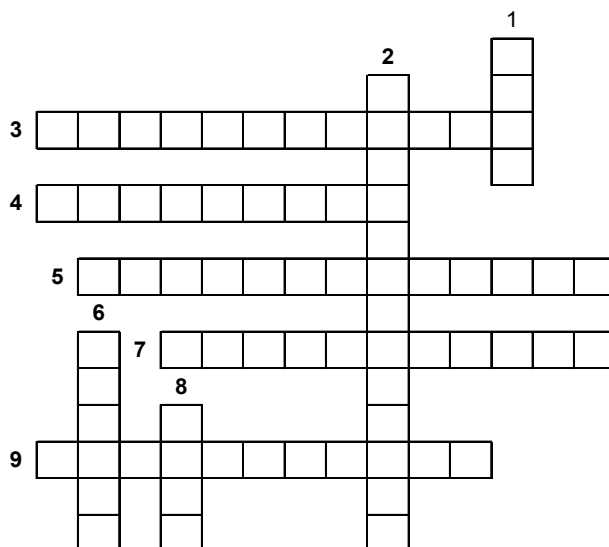

Instructions: Read the definitions. Complete the crossword writing the words that are being defined. First, read the clue. Then, write your answer.

Down

1. an expert and teacher
2. to work hard
6. an assortment of foods; a meal
8. the ambiance or atmosphere

Across

3. the most important person at an event
4. to help
5. an expert who speaks at an event
7. to provide information about a product or service to the public
9. celebrating an important event or occasion

Extension Activity

Introduce an author.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Choose a famous author and learn about him or her online.
- Take notes regarding your author's literary career.
- Pretend that your author will be speaking at an event, and plan a short introduction.
- Deliver your introduction to your classmates.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I research a famous author.

☐ ☐

I read and take notes.

☐ ☐

I plan an introduction.

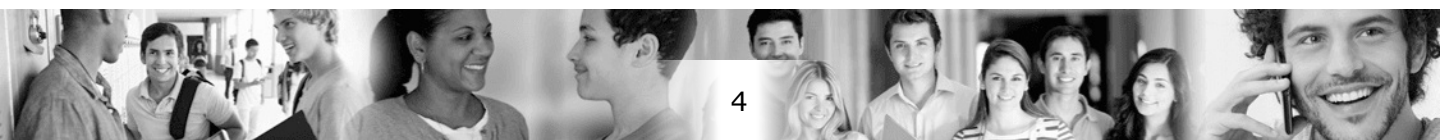

☐ ☐

I introduce someone to my classmates.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- celebratory (adjective): celebrating an important event or occasion e.g. In the end, we decided that a few bottles of wine would be nice. It ought to give the event a more celebratory feel.
- feel (noun): the way that something feels; the ambiance or atmosphere e.g. I don't want it to have a sombre feel.
- spread (noun): an assortment of foods; a meal
e.g. Adam contacted the company last week, so they ought to have a nice spread prepared for the big launch.
- to publicize (verb): to provide information about a product or service to the public e.g. We've been publicizing the event on social media all month.
- guest of honor (noun): the most important person at an event e.g. There ought to be a big lineup once the guest of honor arrives.
- to pitch in (verb): to help
e.g. I'll expect you all to be there pitching in at that point, as we can always use an extra hand for crowd control.
- guru (noun): an expert and teacher
e.g. I understand that the guest of honor is a technology guru.
- guest lecturer (noun): an expert in a particular field who speaks at an event e.g. We will be inviting a social media guru to speak at the event and introduce Marisa.
- to knuckle down (verb): to work hard e.g. Let's really try to knuckle down and make this our best launch ever!

Learning Points

Will and Would to Express Willingness or Intention

When you want to express intention to do something or a willingness to do something, you can use the verbs will and would.

Context is particularly important to understand the exact meaning of each verb.

For example:

George will translate for you - he speaks French. (willingness)

Ill sit on the floor - I don't mind. (willingness)

I won't be coming later. (intention)

Would you mind helping me, please? (willingness)

Ill call you later. (intention)

Read the examples from the text. Keep the context in mind as you do.

Examples:

- I would like to give you a brief overview of our plans for the book launch.
- As you may have heard, we will be going ahead with the book signing.
- In the end, we decided that a few bottles of wine would be nice.
- I'll expect you all to be there pitching in at that point.

Learning Points

Modals for Expressing Duty and Advice

You can use a variety of modals to talk about what is necessary, what someone is responsible for and to give advice.

The modals should and ought to are interchangeable when you talk about duty or give advice.

For example:

You should /ought to take a hat today - it's cold. (advice)

People should/ought to be more considerate around the holiday season. (duty)

When you talk about yourself and give advice to yourself you can use either ought to or should.

For example:

I should/ought to take a coat.

You can use should/ ought to + have + past participle to talk about duty in the past. You often indicate a criticism or regret.

For example:

He should have asked me before.

We ought to have taken a cab.

Examples:

- You should have received a proposed itinerary by e-mail as well, so I'll just go over some of the highlights.
- Adam pointed out that we should probably wait until the afternoon when the kids would be out of school.
- There was also a lot of debate as to whether we ought to serve alcohol.
- It ought to give the event a more celebratory feel.
- We've contacted several people in the industry, and we should have our guest lecturer confirmed by the end of the week.

